
Adam Shebani

Madison, WI 53713

608-630-6233 | adamsheb414@gmail.com | WWW: <https://github.com/aadabathon>

LinkedIn

Summary

Proficient in hardware and software design, with experience spanning embedded systems, data analytics, and financial software. I'm eager to apply my diverse technical background to contribute to an innovative Midwest-based tech company, and grow as a hardware/software engineer.

Skills

- Python
- Java
- Verilog/SystemVerilog
- Microsoft 365 (Excel)
- CAD
- Data Analysis
- JavaScript, HTML, CSS
- Git, Bash, SSH

Experience

06/2024 - Current

Independent Contractor

Day Trader

- Earned over $10,000 in proprietary trading firm payouts through disciplined execution of a self-developed technical trading system.
- Traded consistently for hundreds of live sessions.

06/2024 - Current

Independent

Investor

- Applied Buffett-style valuation methods to model hundreds of companies.
- Deployed algorithmic strategies using the Interactive Brokers API live.

05/2025 - 09/2025

Badger Brothers Moving — Madison, WI

Moving Specialist

- Handled customer service and on-site labor, worked full-time and completed over 100 moves, generated over six figures worth of revenue.

Education

Expected in 05/2027

University of Wisconsin, Madison Madison, WI

Bachelor Of Science (BS): Computer Engineering (3.7 GPA)

05/2025

Madison Area Technical College Madison, WI

Pre-Engineering (3.8 GPA)

Personal Projects

- Developed an Interactive Brokers trading dashboard and a suite of quantitative option trading tools in Python for real-time analytics and execution.
- Built a web application with a remotely hosted Java/Python backend supporting advanced quantitative, machine learning, and statistical workflows.
- Designed and verified a fully synthesizable 8-bit CPU in Verilog featuring a custom ISA, register file, and memory interface, validated through ModelSim simulation.